History

Henry H. Perritt, Jr. is a Professor of Law and Director of the Graduate Program in Financial Services Law at Chicago-Kent College of Law. He received his B.S. in engineering from MIT in 1966, a master’s degree in management from MIT’s Sloan School in 1970, and a J.D. from Georgetown University Law Center in 1975. He served on President Bill Clinton’s Transition Team, working on telecommunications issues, and drafted principles for electronic dissemination of public information, which formed the core of the Electronic Freedom of Information Act Amendments adopted by Congress in 1996. From 1997 to 2002, he served as dean of Chicago-Kent, and was the Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives in the 10th District of Illinois in 2002.

Throughout his academic career, Professor Perritt made it possible for groups of law and engineering students to work together to provide refugee aid through “Project Bosnia,” “Operation Kosovo,” and “Destination Democracy.”

Scope and Contents

This collection includes a few personal papers, but the majority is communication, correspondence, and documents regarding the formation and execution of Project Bosnia.

Series I: Personal Papers includes correspondence, as well as collected materials from several presentations given by Perritt to state bar associations, and at legal institutes and seminars. Correspondence regarding these events and other matters are included in this series, but other series include correspondence as well.

Series II: Villanova University Materials includes materials from Perritt’s tenure at Villanova University School of Law. The series includes committee reports, memoranda, and committee correspondence. Some information on classroom technology and course materials also exists in this series.
Series III: The Project Bosnia series includes the bulk of the materials in the collection, mostly items dealing with travel to Bosnia, and communication with project partners. Also included are materials related to a hearing on Serbia, as well as clippings, planning materials, and general research and reports on the project.

Restrictions

Parts of Series II regarding Villanova committee research are restricted indefinitely.
