MIDYEAR
Another class has gone forth from the portals of Chicago-Kent to make a name for itself in the legal world. In the eyes of those who are left behind as undergraduates, they have accomplished a great aim—fulfilled an ambition—in fact, have attained a worthy ideal. They have graduated. They will enter the bar. They will practice law. They are ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW. But on further reflection, they should endeavor not to mistake the means for the end. Graduation is just one more stepping stone on the way to the ultimate goal. The whole legal world is ahead of them. Much remains to be done, not only for the personal advancement of the individual, but for the betterment of the profession as a whole. It is the earnest wish and confident belief of all of us that this Class of February, 1927 will go far toward fame and fortune, and do much to make the practice of Law a better, greater, and nobler profession.

NEW BOOKS AVAILABLE.
The College Book Store has in stock two books which are deserving of special mention, and it is desired to call the students' attention to them. "The Common Law" by Holmes is a particularly enlightening volume, and right now, it would be of immense help to the student of law. It is considered a most excellent review of the entire body of the common law, well written, and an invaluable addition to any law library. A volume which is particularly adapted for collateral reading by the beginning law student is "Morgan Introduction to the Study of Law." Professor Edmund M. Morgan of the Harvard University Law School has, in this book, filled a need which has been long felt in supplying the beginner with a comprehensive introduction to law study. Both of these books may be obtained at the College Book Store.

BRIGHT SAYINGS FROM THE SECOND FLOOR FRONT
Mrs. Adden: "I called the police and he came."
Judge Higgins: "That is for the jury to decide."
Mr. Morsbach: "But, your Honor, the jury wasn't there."
Mr. Leren: "He was shot in the scuffle."
Mr. Jensen: "The parents of the children were married ahead of time."

FAMOUS ALIBIS
Frank Foley: "That may be the Illinois law, but in 147 Washington 179, etc., . . ."
Grace Cooper: "Well, the decisions differ in the different states."
Don Murray: "As far as patent law is concerned. . . ."
Mr. Fisher: "I was just going to ask a question about the preceding case."—G. C.
