Chicago-Kent Law Review
JOKE

Professor Woods (in Contracts I): Mr. McCaffrey, what do you think about it?
Mac: Well,—I don't know very much about law—
Prof. Woods: We know it, you don't need to tell us that.

ANOTHER

Prof. Woods: “I'm not saying you're wrong, Evans.”
Second-half Freshman: “Well, you didn't give any indication that I was right either.”

NEWS NOTE

A very familiar henna-colored scarf decorated with a brown design was noticed draped around the neck of Mr. Brown. It is very difficult for those who have observed his attentions to the sole femme in the late afternoon section to believe that his wearing of said scarf does not mean something pretty serious, especially in view of the fact that the young lady referred to has been known to wear the same scarf.

By the way, Miss Nell Grape is from San Diego, California.

WRONG AGAIN

Professor James (in Criminal Law Class 4th floor rear): Mr. Phillips, could a man be indicted under such circumstances?
Phillips: Oh yes, I don't remember it,—but anyhow, it's the 4th case.
Prof. James: That's where you're wrong twice, it's the 3rd.

HEARD ON SECOND FLOOR FRONT

Mr. Fogle: Remember every time a student makes a good recitation it is a form of advertising.
Miss C: What form of advertising is it when he shoots craps between recitations? (Sh-h-h—not so loud.—Ed.)

OUTDOOR SPORTS

Fritz Kreisler has no idea of working when he is taking a vacation. When he rests, he rests, as he did last summer when he went camping in Maine. He enjoyed himself greatly, but his guide wondered.

“He no fish; he no hunt,” the guide complained. “Pay me $4.50 a day, and all I got to do is sit around and listen to him play darn fiddle.”
