CONSUMER WELFARE V. PROTECTING THE COMPETITIVE PROCESS — AN ATLANTIC COMPETITION LAW DIVIDE?

In recent years, significant conflicts have arisen between US antitrust laws and European competition laws. Many factors have contributed to these conflicts — differences between the actual legal norms themselves and methods of competition law analysis on the one hand, and differences in economic and cultural patterns, on the other. Professor Drexl will analyze these conflicts and the factors that have generated them. He will also look carefully at the influence of these conflicts on the development of antitrust laws internationally.

HENRY MORRIS ENDOWMENT

This program is funded through the Henry Morris Endowment. An 1889 graduate of the Chicago-Kent College of Law, Henry Crittendon Morris (1863-1948) enjoyed a distinguished career as an international lawyer and diplomat. During 25 years of foreign service prior to World War I, Mr. Morris served as the United States Consul in Ghent, Belgium, and as secretary to Chief Justice Fuller at the Permanent International Court at the Hague. When the war broke out, he returned to Chicago to coordinate Red Cross and Liberty Loan campaigns on behalf of the American war effort.

Mr. Morris was a member of the American Society of International Law and a number of other organizations devoted to improving international relations. He was the author of The History of Colonization from the Earliest Times to the Present Day (1906). The French government made him a chevalier of the French Legion of Honor in 1937.
