This volume marks the beginning of quarterly publication of Chicago-Kent Law Review. The Review has met with great success in recent years which has enabled it to expand to include a labor law issue, special symposium editions, and issues treating subjects of general interest to the bar.

Much of the success of this format can be traced to the enthusiastic reception by the legal community of the Seventh Circuit Review, inaugurated in 1973. For this reason, it is especially appropriate to dedicate the 1980 issue of the Seventh Circuit Review to Justice John Paul Stevens of the United States Supreme Court, and Circuit Justice for the Seventh Circuit. Justice Stevens' legal scholarship and tremendous contribution to the judiciary while serving on the Seventh Circuit and now the United States Supreme Court are more than deserving of acknowledgment.

In so honoring Justice Stevens, Chicago-Kent Law Review is pleased to present a tribute to Justice Stevens by the judges and senior judges of the Seventh Circuit. The editors and staff of Chicago-Kent Law Review join in saluting Justice Stevens and look forward to serving the legal community in this as well as future issues of the Review.
