Spring Semester Schedule and Registration Dates

The Spring semester class schedule has been delayed because of the curricular changes currently under consideration by the faculty. With fingers crossed, here is my tentative timetable:

On Tuesday, November 10, the faculty will vote on curriculum changes and I plan to distribute the preliminary Spring, 1993 schedule. I will meet with students to discuss the preliminary schedule at the following times:

Day Division students: Wednesday, November 11 at 3:00 p.m. in Room 285.
Evening Division students: Thursday, November 12 at 5:00 p.m. in Room 285.

If you have any questions, comments or suggestions regarding the schedule, please come to one of the meetings, call me at 65130, or email me. Some changes to the preliminary schedule may be made after the meetings.

The Registration Newspaper with the final version of the schedule, descriptions of new courses and registration instructions will be distributed on Monday, November 16. Registration for Evening Division students will be on Wednesday and Thursday, November 18 and 19, and for Day Division students, on Friday and Monday, November 20 and 23. Add-Drop day for Evening Division students will be on Tuesday, December 1 and for Day Division students on Wednesday, December 2.

Changes in the Code of Conduct and the Academic Regulations

On November 3, 1992, the faculty proposed the changes to the Code of Conduct set forth in Part A below and approved the changes in the academic regulations set forth in Part B.

Part A. Proposed Changes to the Code of Conduct

These are proposed amendments to the Code of Conduct which have been preliminarily approved by the faculty. Section §10-5(b) of the Code of Conduct provides that proposed amendments to the Code must be distributed to the students prior to final action by the faculty. This Record notice constitutes such distribution. If you have objections to any of the proposals, communicate them to Kwame Raoul, the SBA president or your SBA representative. The faculty will consider the student comments and take final action on the proposals at the December 8, 1992 faculty meeting. If you have any questions about the proposals, you may direct them to Prof. Dale Nance, the Chair of the Faculty Curriculum Committee, or to me.

The stricken language is current Code language that will be deleted. The language in bold-underlined type is new language that will be added to the Code.

Proposal 1: Section 6-5(b) of the Code of Conduct shall be amended as follows:

Whenever a student is convicted of violating this Code, a notation to that effect shall be made on the individual’s transcript. However, if the Tribunal determines that the violation was de minimis, the Tribunal may order that no notation be made on the individual’s transcript. If the Tribunal unanimously determines that the interests of justice so require, the Tribunal may suspend the entry of said notation on conditions it deems appropriate.

Proposal 2: Section 6-5(b) of the Code of Conduct shall be amended by adding the following sentence at the end thereof:

Whether or not the violation is noted on the transcript, it will be reported to appropriate licensing authorities.

Comment: The Character and Fitness Committee of the Illinois Bar and similar committees of other states’ bars require the law school to report all convictions of ethical violations. The law school has always reported convictions, even if no notation was made on the student’s transcript. This amendment to the Code of Conduct is proposed simply to give students notice of this practice and to avoid the inference that omitting the transcript notation will mean that the Character and Fitness committees will not be informed of the conviction.

Proposal 3: §6-6 of the Code of Conduct shall be amended to read as follows:

Following imposition of sanctions, the Tribunal shall notify the Convicted Violator, inform the Prosecutor and publish findings of fact and conclusions of law and the sanctions imposed, provided however that if the full opinion in the case exceeds five pages in length, the Tribunal shall publish only a summary thereof, not to exceed five pages, which will include a statement that the full opinion is on file with the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. The published notice shall be dated and shall remain posted for one week while regular classes are in session.

B. Changes to the Academic Regulations

The following changes to the academic regulations have been approved by the faculty and become effective with the Spring, 1993 semester. If you have any questions about these changes, you may contact me.

1: The title of §2.4 of the Student Handbook shall be amended as follows:

Pass-Fail Credit-Hour Limitations

and the text of that section shall be amended as follows:

A student in good standing may elect to take courses on a pass/fail basis in accordance with the limitations of this section, provided that the student designates such an election by the end of the period prescribed for adding courses (see §3.10(b)). This permission does not apply to (1) any course that is required to be taken at some time before graduation. (2) any seminar, (3) any course that has been designated by the instructor before registration as unavailable for pass/fail, nor (4) any course that, if taken, is required to be taken on a pass/fail basis. No more than six credit hours taken under such an election will count toward the graduation credit requirement. After the period for adding courses has expired, the student may not convert from pass/fail to the standard grading system or from the standard grading system to pass/fail. A student may not receive credit toward graduation for more than 19 credit hours graded on a pass/fail basis.

Comment: This change allows students to take up to six elective credit hours on a pass/fail basis instead of receiving a grade. The Registrar, when distributing the exam number list for the reporting of grades, will indicate which exam numbers correspond to students taking the course on a pass/fail basis.

2: §6.6 of the Student Handbook shall be amended to read as follows:

Only the grades of P (Pass) or F (Failure) are awarded in the following courses: In-House Clinical Program, Judicial Externship, Advanced Externship, Independent Research, Law Review, Moot Court Society, International Law, Moot Court and Legal Writing Instructor (for student legal writing instructors). Credit hours of graded as a Pass ("P") are counted toward graduation but have no effect on a student’s GPA. If a student receives an Failing grade ("F") in any of the above courses, a pass/fail course, it will be included in the GPA computation as indicated in §6.2. A student may not take more than 19 credit hours of the courses listed in this section.

Comment: This change limits §6.6 to the matter of how pass/fail grades are included in GPA computations, the proper scope of a rule included in the section entitled "GRADING SYSTEM". The limitation on non-classroom courses currently contained in this section is moved to Section II ("STUDY LOAD, COURSE, AND WORK LIMITATIONS") by change 3.

3: A new §2.7, entitled "Non-Classroom Course Credit Limitation" shall be added to the Student Handbook as follows:

A student may not receive credit toward graduation for more than 19 credit hours taken in the following courses or areas combined: In-House Clinical Program, Judicial Externship, Advanced Externship, Interviewing and Counseling (Advice Desk), Independent Research, Law Review, Moot Court Society, moot court competitions receiving academic credit, Legal Writing teaching assistantships, and Academic Support Program teaching assistantships.

Comment: This restates and updates the list of non-classroom courses that are subject to the 19 hour limitation and places this limitation in a separate section disconnected from the matter of pass/fail limitations. The addition of this section will require renumbering the remaining sections in Section II.

4: §1.17 of the Student Handbook (concerning the joint J.D./LL.M in taxation) shall be amended by adding at an appropriate place in the first paragraph the following sentence:

An LL.M. course may not be taken on a pass/fail basis.

and by changing the second sentence of the third paragraph to read:
Comment: Given the rationale of the pass/fail election, someone specializing in tax should not be allowed to take tax courses pass/fail. Change 1 pertains only to J.D. students, and such a student in the joint degree program should be expected to compete on grades in the area of specialization.

5: §3.13 of the Student Handbook shall be amended as follows:

A J.D. student may not audit a law course only if (1) the student registers to audit the course by the end of the period prescribed for adding courses (see §3.10(b)), (2) permission of the instructor to audit is obtained prior to the student's registering the election to audit, and (3) tuition is paid for the course. An auditor receives neither a grade nor credit for the course, but the fact of auditing will appear on the student's transcript. After the period for adding courses has expired, the student may not convert from auditing to graded or from graded to auditing. A student who has audited a course may not thereafter take that course for credit without the permission of the Associate Dean. A person not enrolled as a student at the law school Others who desire to may audit a law course only must obtain the permission of the Associate Dean and the instructor.

6: §§1.2 and 1.3 of the Student Handbook shall be amended to say that the required seminar (or independent research in lieu thereof) must be taken after completion of 54 credit hours, and in each section the following language shall be added at the end of the sentence stating the 54 credit hour requirement:

unless the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs waives this requirement in the same manner as provided in §2.8.

Comment: This change was made to adjust for the reduction in credit hours required for graduation.

FROM SBA PRESIDENT KWAME RAOUl

As I write this message I am awaiting the SBA/Conviser Bash that is just hours away. I hope that by the time you read this message you will have fully recovered from the party and gotten back on track for the home stretch to finals.

As this semester draws closer and closer to an end, I know many of you can think about nothing but finals and legal writing papers, but humor me and join me as I reflect upon the highlights of this semester and look forward to the great things to come at Chicago-Kent in spring semester.

First let us look at the highlights of this semester. There was the dedication convocation that brought Justice Stevens and many distinguished jurists to our new building. There was the Derrick Bell presentation that again packed the Oglivie Auditorium with students and faculty. There was the Education Conference that brought people from throughout the state to study the problems that plague public education. There were the numerous speakers forums sponsored by various student organizations that attracted students eager to learn outside of the classroom experience and also eager to get free pizza.

The biggest of all highlights for me was the fall elections. No, not just the election of SBA first year representatives, but the national, state and local fall elections. And the best thing about those elections was that the country woke up and decided to vote this year. It is so good to see how many people overcame the rain, wind and the snow to exercise their right to vote. Even some of our own students overcame obstacles in order to vote. Third year student Bob Statchen did not let the lack of a voting booth in a crowded polling place stop him. He demanded his 26th Amendment right to vote and took a portable voting device into the nearest bathroom, sat on the toilet and exercised his right (The photo from the Chicago Tribune is attached to the back of The Record).

What is to come next semester? Hopefully more of the same. The SBA is currently planning the Law Week program to be held in April. We need suggestions for Law Day speakers from both students and faculty. We will also entertain suggestions for other Law Week events.

It's a new era! Time for change! Time for me to run before Bob Statchen finds me.

Bye.

Speaker Dynamics: An Appeal from PAD President Sean Zenner and SBA President Kwame Raoul

As Chicago-Kent continues to build its reputation for being a leading innovator in the legal community which educates strong candidates for legal hire, our reputation is being damaged in another area: speakers.

Each time a student organization invites a speaker to our school, that organization is providing you, the student, an opportunity to learn more about your career path and issues in the law. Many of these speakers dedicate their valuable time to aid you in adjusting to the legal community. Most speakers give their presentations for free, and most of them will not wish to return to speak.

The reason these speakers will not return is the apathy and general ambivalence which greets them at their forums. Since our student body does not attend the speaking event (despite bribery in the form of food and beverages), the speaker gets the impression that students don’t care about what the speaker has to say. These speakers suddenly find themselves too busy to speak at Kent to students, while having an open calendar for other Chicago-area schools.

Attendance is the solution. Often speaking events last for an hour, and are held during the "open hours" in the class schedule. Additionally, food is frequently served, although, hopefully, your real purpose in attending the event will be to assist in your personal advancement. Most importantly, as word spreads of Chicago-Kent's great interest in speakers, student organizations will find it easier to continue to supply students with the best speakers available. Alternatively, you can go sit in the Spakateria and read the paper until no speakers will come to Kent for any amount of money. Then you can throw out that paper when you're done along with the high prestige Chicago-Kent currently has, and relegate yourself to being an alumnus of apathy from a declining law school who's rapid advancement you have just terminated.

SPECIAL NOTICES

Federal Tax Procedure (Law 580), Tax Division of Law Offices

Federal Tax Procedure taught by Professor Gerald Brown is open to all students. However, prior completion of or concurrent enrollment in the course is mandatory for those enrolled in the Tax Division of the Law Offices. Therefore, new students who are accepted and register for the Tax Division for the spring 1993 semester (Law 581) must also register for Tax Procedure (Law 580). Students who intend to enroll in the Tax Division for the summer 1993 semester should also register for Tax Procedure in the spring 1993 semester as it will not be offered in the summer. Personal Income Tax is a prerequisite for Tax Procedure.

What the Non-Tax Lawyer Needs To Know About IRS Collection Procedures

On Monday, November 16, Visiting Professor Steve Johnson will speak on Protecting Your Client from IRS Collections from 4:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. in Room 370. All students and faculty are invited. No substantive tax background is needed, and those anticipating a general practice will benefit as well as those anticipating tax practice. Professor Johnson will share insights gained as an IRS senior attorney for 6 years and, before that, an attorney in private practice for 5 years. The emphasis will be on practical steps an attorney can take to minimize adverse effects of IRS collection actions on both the taxpayer and third parties co-owning property or doing business with the taxpayer.

Security

It is unfortunate that instances of theft accelerate each year when the holidays draw near. As a reminder for you:

--- Be sure to take your valuables with you everytime you leave a lounge area, the library or the cafeteria.
--- Be sure to lock your locker!
--- Call the front lobby Campus Police immediately to report all suspicious persons or activities (ext. 6-5030).

Copies of a memo which provides further crime prevention tips is located on the rack in the student concourse. Please be sure to pick up a copy.

LETTER FROM FLORENCE

From Professor Anita Bernstein

Greetings! I thought you might want to hear a little bit about my leave. As many of you know, I am a Fulbright scholar and Jean Monnet Fellow this year at the European University Institute in Florence. My research project is to examine the changing law of products liability and product safety in the European Community.

It's wonderful that a city so beautiful as Florence is a good base for this work. The European University Institute is the graduate school of the European Community. It opened its doors in 1976 so it's still "up and coming," so to speak. This connection to the Community means that the law department offers courses in EC law; the library includes a large EC collection (which, by the way, is not as good as Chicago-Kent's); and frequently there are events and receptions concerning the Community, because the Institute limits its focus to history, political science, economics, European Community affairs and law -- all of which touch on my research interests -- I have benefited from interdisciplinary exchanges.

My research requires a lot of travel, as I have to interview people in various European cities. Last week I went to Brussels for meetings at the European Commission, the administrative body of the Community, to discuss product safety and liability. What I think of as Torts is generally known as "consumer law" in Europe, and I had extensive interviews at the Consumer Policy Unit of the Commission. A tremendous power struggle is going on now at the EC, with the member nations resenting the power of unelected "Eurocrats" in Brussels, and these Eurocrats fiercely believing that they are doing urgently important work. The next interview trips I plan to take are to Holland and Germany.
Life in Italy is famously pleasant. "La dolce vita" can be annoying when you need home repairs, and everything happens very slowly, but if you just relax it's was wonderful way to live. I'm a member of a health club, which opens at 10:00 -- I'm usually the first one there and the employees have to turn on the lights. Sometimes I go to Step Aerobics where the commands are all in Italian, of course. Now that many of the tourist have gone home, I've begun to enjoy the museums and churches. It's a lot warmer here than Chicago, but it has rained more or less steadily for about a month.

I look forward to seeing you in January, probably around the first week of the new semester. You can write to me on Internet email, if you like. best of luck on the fall exams, and remember to enjoy school!

REPORT FROM LONDON

This is the fifth report provided by Professor Philip Hablutzel who is teaching in chicago-Kent's London program.

A Canterbury Tale. Everyone seems to be back from Mid-Semester break. We didn't lose Theresa in Paris after all; she was back in England and in Canterbury. As soon as she (a 3L from the University of Iowa) returned and checked in with her internship barrister, he said that their case was up the next day in the court in Canterbury. It's not unusual for a barrister to be trying cases in the outlying towns all over southern England. Their client ran a small restaurant and it went under. The "winding up" official impounded the funds of the business for the creditors, but client and wife got access to some of those business funds and applied them to their personal debts. Thus the case came a criminal case, to be defended by Theresa and her barrister. So, like Chaucer's pilgrim, it was off to Canterbury. "Surely," I asked her, "you got to see the cathedral? To stand at the spot where King Henry's men murdered Thomas Becket in 1170? That goal of all the pilgrims since?" "Becket, schmecket. It poured rain all day and all we got to see was the inside of a courtroom and watch our guy plead to a lesser offence." Typical lawyer's day: see the court but not the sights. And for that she cut my Banking Law class?

Friday was a cool, cloudless, perfect blue-sky day for the trip to Oxford, "that sweet city with her dreaming spires." We walked the colleges and town and then went into and through one college (Brasenose), seeing the dining hall, chapel, student rooms, etc. The following day the Times carried an article on "Oxford's dark side," its reputation as the capital city of suicide. Several weeks before, a brilliant entering freshman English major despaired that her working-class background might not be enough to compete in such a pressure-cooker environment and took her own life. Oxford looks so deceptively peaceful.

FACULTY NEWS

Professor William R. Andersen, visiting this year from the University of Washington in Seattle, has just published Antitrust Law: Policy and Practice (2d Ed. 1992). The book is a 1200-page casebook, part of Matthew Bender's Analysis and Skills Series, and was coauthored by Dean Paul Rogers from SMU. Perhaps the first American casebook to do so, this book comes with two computer disks containing graphics and tutorials as aids to teaching and learning. The computer material for the book was done by Professor Andersen, whose research this year at Chicago-Kent is on the general subject of how this technology can be used to enrich law school teaching.

Professor Jon Tomes has just published Healthcare Records Manual (Warren Gorham Lamont, 1992). This 1,000 looseleaf binder, to be supplemented annually, tells lawyers and healthcare providers the legal requirements for medical information. Encyclopedic in scope it covers, among others, confidentiality requirements, what media is admissible in evidence, requirements for subpoena of medical information, and so on for every state and the federal government.
Little, Brown, Inc. has offered to publish a contracts casebook by Professor Randy Barnett. The casebook, which would likely appear in the fall of 1995, will be based upon class materials that Professor Barnett has been developing for the past six years.

Professor Philip Hablutzel will present a paper at the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies, University of London, on November 16. The presentation is a part of the Fall, 1992 series of Monday afternoon seminars given by foreign scholars in residence at the Institute for the benefit of the London legal community. Prof. Hablutzel's paper on Current Problems in the Regulation of Banks in the United States, and includes commentary on the new Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act and the new capital requirements going into effect on Dec. 19, 1992.

LAW OFFICES CRIMINAL DIVISION CASES:

ANGIE SUK AN

In January 1992, Marc Kadish's section of the clinic was retained to take over the defense of Angie Suk An, a 31 year old Korean woman, charged with Solicitation to Commit Feticide and Solicitation to commit various crimes on the mother. The case ended on Wednesday, October 28, when Judge Themis Karnezis sentenced Ms. An to probation.

During the three semesters that the case was in the school, clinic students and members of the Asian American Law Students worked on the case. In the Spring semester, all the women in the section worked on the case: Leah Collister, Lesa Ingraham, Gina Lavorata, Martha Niles, and Valerie Walker. During the Summer, Debbie Bowers, Melissa Genson, Gina Lavorata, and Joan Simpson worked on the case. This semester Melissa Genson and Gina Lavorata worked on the sentencing.

Without the student work on the case, the results would not have been possible. During the first semester, the students worked exclusively with the client to gain her trust, organized a mock jury trial under the leadership of Leah Collister, and researched the issue of "cultural differences" as a defense, and worked with the Isaac Ray Psychiatric Institute. During the summer, the students worked on a very creative jurisdictional issue.

However, it was the work of the Korean community and the position of the victim that led the State's Attorney's office to agree to a plea negotiation that permitted the lengthy sentencing hearing to eventually take place. Ms. An pled guilty in July. The sentencing hearing began in August and was completed on the 18th when the Judge announced that he was going to sentence her to probation and referred the case for further investigation for a month when he will announce the conditions of the probation.

JAMES DELANEY

This murder case has been in the clinic for almost a year. Hearings began on a Motion to Suppress Confession during the summer. On October 23, John Lavey, a 711 licensed student, conducted the direct examination of the client for the motion. Given the fact that we are a fee-generating clinic, it is sometimes difficult for the students to actually conduct in-court examination...so this was an especially noteworthy undertaking.
RESEARCH ASSISTANTS NEEDED AND OTHER EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Research Assistant. Professor Gerald Brown is seeking to hire a second-year student as a paid research assistant. A student who has completed or is currently enrolled in Personal Income Tax is preferred. Interested students should submit a resume to Professor Brown in Room 615.

improvised, relying on audience participation. Thanks for Coming was one the highlights of the KJF Talent Show last spring. Don’t miss them!! Tickets are $3.00 in advance and will be on sale in the Spakateria from 12:00 noon - 2:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. on November 17, 18, and 19. Tickets at the door will cost $4.00. The ticket price includes all the beer, wine, soda, and gourmet hors deuvres you are capable of consuming, and a lot of laughs. If you are interested in helping KJF with this event, please KJF fellowships enabled two students to work at public interest jobs. Jili Runk worked at the Legal Assistance Foundation’s Englewood office, providing free legal services to low-income clients. Jordan Marsh worked for the Chicago Panel on Public School Policy and Finance, a non-profit organization dedicated to improving public schools in Illinois. This year, we hope to raise enough money for at least twice as many fellowships. Please help by attending our fundraisers and by throwing your spare change

A daylong scramble in precincts

By George Papajohn and William Recktenwald

This is a different, cleaner era in Chicago politics. Dead men do not vote. Voters, the live ones, vote only once. The Democratic machine is more myth than reality.

In the voting booth, the lever has been replaced by the punch card and the stylus.

But the precinct worker lives.

Election Day to the precinct worker is like a banquet for a caterer, setting the table so that others may enjoy.

Bob Statchen finds some privacy by voting in the bathroom of the studio-apartment polling place in the 30th precinct of the 42nd Ward Tuesday. Statchen used a portable voting device.
